using the three main types of electronic signature recognised by Swiss and EU law: simple (SES), advanced (AES), and qualified (QES).

Verify signers' identities for free

With DeepSign any signer can identify for free using our own DeepID mobile app which works with both passports and national IDs.

Get documents signed legally

Electronic signing is legally valid with DeepSign. Three types of eSignature available including the QES, equivalent to a handwritten signature.

To sign contracts with a qualified electronic signature, which provides the highest level of evidential value according to the Swiss (ZertES) and EU (eIDAS) laws, each co-signer must

Secure your corporate documents with the electronic seal by DeepSign.

An electronic seal, also known as digital seal or eSeal, is the digital equivalent of the classic company rubber stamp.

An electronic seal is based on a digital signature which is associated with a legal entity (organisations or institutions) and used to ensure the proof of the origin, authenticity and integrity of the entity's documents.

Your digital seal from DeepSign benefits from integration with our own digital identity app DeepID, which makes it easier for your organisation to be verified and enable the seal.
